

Whitewater Rafting

The New River Gorge, West Virginia

May 20-21, 2006

"Weekend Camping-Whitewater Adventure"

"Come experience one of the best whitewater rivers in the east-the New River! The New River is the oldest river in the western hemisphere...A river of varying temperament, the New River has two distinct sections, creating very diverse white water rafting trips. The Upper Section is mild with Class I-III rapids (Class I=mild, Class V=difficult). The Lower Section is marked by big whitewater as the river constricts through the gorge, boasting Class II-V rapids. The Lower section of the New River is one of the most popular whitewater rafting trips in the country. Here high volume water narrows as it makes its way through the gorge and tumbles over giant boulders to form "America's best whitewater." Mild rapids mark the beginning of the trip while they gradually increase in size and difficulty from Class II to Class V, making this a great trip for beginners (age 12 and up) as well as experienced river rafters. Between rapids you will find plenty of calm water, so you can swim, relax or just enjoy the scenery." *
